Women and HIV/AIDS in prison:
a human rights approach.
The Angola context.

Joana Alves
2009/2010
Supervisor: Prof. Francesca Vianello
University of Padua
Italy
ABSTRACT

Prisoners do not (should not) lose their rights while they are deprived of their liberty under the custody of the State besides the lawful limitations inherent to incarceration. They must be considered by the State as part of the population and Governments should not neglect their rights as human beings.

As prison systems have been primarily designed for men, who continue to be the majority of the prison population, prison policies and procedures often do not address women’s rights and needs. Data on the health of women in prison and the health care provided for them, namely related with HIV/AIDS, is rare. This situation inhibits the States to adequately respect, protect and fulfil the inalienable human rights of women in prison even when they are provided by the national and international law.

As an example of this situation we chose the Angola’s context. Among it, the current thesis aims to assess the problematic related with women prisoners affected by HIV/AIDS in a human rights perspective. It explores how the existing international, regional and national human rights instruments, to which Angola has adhered, guarantee the protection of women in this particular situation and the importance of systematic assessment necessary to effectively fulfil those rights.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction and methodology......................................................................................... 11

1. Introduction.......................................................................................................................... 11

2. Methodology......................................................................................................................... 14

Chapter I - Women’s HIV/AIDS status in prison settings.................................................. 15

1. The HIV/AIDS problematic................................................................................................. 15

   1.1 HIV/AIDS in Africa........................................................................................................... 15

   1.2 HIV inside the prison......................................................................................................... 19

2. Angola context....................................................................................................................... 25

   2.1 The woman in the Angola’s society................................................................................. 25

   2.2 HIV/AIDS in Angola....................................................................................................... 30

   2.2.1 Situation in the prison system in Angola................................................................. 34

Chapter II - International and regional legal framework.................................................. 39

1. Introduction.......................................................................................................................... 39

2. International Standards........................................................................................................ 43

   2.1 The International Bill of Human Rights.......................................................................... 43

   2.1.1 Universal Declaration of Human Rights........................................................................ 44

   2.1.2 International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.................................................. 45

   2.1.3 International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights................................. 48

   2.2 Other United Nations treaties.......................................................................................... 53

   2.2.1 Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment........................................................................................................ 53

   2.2.2 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women................................................................. 56

   2.2.3 Convention on the Rights of the Child........................................................................... 58

   2.2.4 International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant workers and Members of their Families................................................................. 59

2.3 Other United Nations Human Rights instruments........................................................... 59

   2.3.1 Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women......................................... 60
2.3.2 The UN Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners........ 61
2.3.3 Body of Principles for the Protection of All persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment................................. 63
2.3.4 Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners...................... 63
2.3.5 Principles of Medical Ethics relevant to the Role of Health Personnel, particularly Physicians, in the Protection of Prisoners and Detainees against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment................................................................. 64
2.3.6 The World Health Organization Guidelines on HIV infection and AIDS in Prisons.............................................................. 65
2.3.7 The International Guidelines on HIV/AIDS and Human Rights........ 66

3. Regional Standards..................................................................... 67
   3.1 Introduction................................................................. 67
   3.2 Regional Treaties....................................................... 68
      3.2.1 African Charter on Human and Peoples` Rights and the Protocols...... 68
   3.3 Other Regional Instruments........................................ 70
      3.3.1 Guidelines and Measures for the Prohibition and Prevention of Torture, Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment in Africa (The Robben Island Guidelines).................................................. 70

Chapter III - Angola`s legal framework....................................... 73
   1. Introduction........................................................................ 73
   2. National standards.......................................................... 73
      2.1 Angola Constitution.................................................. 73
   3. Legislative and administrative measures.......................... 77
      3.1 Legislative measures............................................... 77
         3.1.1 HIV/AIDS Law.................................................. 77
         3.1.2 Penitentiary law................................................. 79
      3.2 Administrative measures.......................................... 80

Chapter IV - Analysis of the standards` implementation in Angola........... 85
   1. Introduction...................................................................... 85
   2. The compliance with international and regional standards........... 86
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3. Lack of policy with a human rights approach</td>
<td>88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1 Prison conditions</td>
<td>88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2 Equality and non-discrimination</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3 HIV/AIDS prison policy</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.4 Promotion of human rights</td>
<td>93</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Need to report and monitor</td>
<td>94</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conclusions</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bibliography</td>
<td>99</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
2010

Women and HIV/AIDS in prison: a human rights approach: the Angola context

Alves, Joana : Mendes

https://doi.org/20.500.11825/1018

Downloaded from Open Knowledge Repository, Global Campus’ institutional repository