WEST PAPUA AND THE PARADOX OF PLENTY
A case study of one of the world’s least known conflicts

Author: Jennie Sili
Supervisor: Sara De Vido
The conflict in West Papua is frequently described as one of the world’s most forgotten conflicts. This thesis is made up of two research questions. The first question aims to understand if the conflict in West Papua has simply been forgotten by the international community or if it is instead more deliberately ignored. The subsequent research question looks to find the causal factors behind the conflict being either forgotten or ignored. The study was carried out through a qualitative case-study combining document based research with semi-structured interviews with West Papuan experts. The combined data was analysed according to Virgil Hawkins theory on what makes stealth conflicts, with the purpose of seeing to what extent the findings of the study correlate to Hawkins theory. The study found that even though the conflict can be considered to never have been known in some parts of the world, the conflict is more deliberately ignored by the international community at large. The conflict in West Papua largely fit Hawkins formula on what makes a conflict be a stealth conflict, with the number one factor behind the conflict in West Papua being largely ignored deriving from the national/political interest of the states making up the international community not acknowledging the conflict. This case study of West Papua shows a severe infringement of the international system, resulting in the victims of ‘forgotten’ conflicts not getting the protection they are entitled to.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

1. INTRODUCTION
   - Figure 1. Map Over West Papua .............................................................. 1
   - 1.1. Background ......................................................................................... 1
   - 1.2. Problem Formulation ........................................................................... 3
   - 1.3. Aim and Research Questions ............................................................... 4
   - 1.4. Delimitations ....................................................................................... 4
   - 1.5. Previous Studies .................................................................................. 6
   - 1.5.1. Previous Studies on West Papua ...................................................... 6
   - 1.5.2. Previous Studies on Forgotten/Ignored conflicts ......................... 10
   - 1.6. Structure of the Thesis ....................................................................... 11

2. THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK
   - 2.1. Forgotten/Ignored conflicts ................................................................. 12
   - 2.2. Virgil Hawkins - Stealth Conflicts ....................................................... 13
   - 2.3. The Actors .......................................................................................... 14
   - 2.4. What Makes Stealth Conflicts? ............................................................. 16
   - 2.4.1. National/Political Interest ................................................................. 16
   - 2.4.2. Geographic Proximity and Access ................................................... 17
   - 2.4.3. Ability to Identify ........................................................................... 18
   - 2.4.4. Ability to Sympathize .................................................................... 19
   - 2.4.5. Simplicity ....................................................................................... 19
   - 2.4.6. Sensationalism .............................................................................. 20
   - 2.5. Combining and Comparing Factors .................................................... 20
   - 2.6. Conclusion ......................................................................................... 23
   - Table 1. Summary of Hawkins Theory on Stealth Conflicts: .................. 24

3. METHODOLOGY
   - 3.1. Qualitative Case Study ...................................................................... 25
   - 3.1.1. Document-based Research .............................................................. 25
   - 3.1.2. Interviews ....................................................................................... 26
   - 3.2. Material, Trustworthiness and Validation .......................................... 27
   - 3.3. Method of Analysis ............................................................................ 29

4. WEST PAPUA
   - 4.1. The West Papuan Setting ................................................................ 30
   - 4.2. West Papua in the Colonial Era .......................................................... 32
   - 4.2.1. The Act of Free choice .................................................................. 35
   - 4.3. Indonesian Political and Economic Context ...................................... 37
   - 4.3.1. West Papuan Political Dynamics ............................................... 38
   - 4.4. Human Rights Situation .................................................................... 40
   - 4.4.1. Human rights violations 1969 - 2009 ......................................... 40
   - 4.4.2. Human Rights Violations 2009 - Present ................................... 41
   - 4.5. Overview of Resource Industry Related Grievances ....................... 45
   - 4.5.1. P.T. Freeport Indonesia ................................................................. 46
   - 4.5.2. Other Natural Resource Extraction Projects ................................ 48
   - 4.6. Conclusion ....................................................................................... 50
5. THE WEST PAPUAN CONFLICT IN AN INTERNATIONAL CONTEXT ....... 52
   5.1. Internationalisation of the Conflict .......................................... 52
   5.2. The West Papua Conflict and the United Nations Human Rights Mechanism ............ 55
      5.2.1. The Human Rights Council ........................................ 57
      5.2.2. Special Procedures ..................................................... 58
      5.2.3. Universal Periodic Review ........................................... 60
   5.3. West Papua and the European Union ........................................ 62
      5.3.1. Bilateral EU-Indonesian relations ................................... 63
      5.3.2. The EU-Delegation in Jakarta ....................................... 64
      5.3.3. Sub-Committee on Human Rights ..................................... 65
      5.3.4. Parliamentary Questions ............................................... 66
   5.4. The West Papua Conflict – Forgotten, Ignored or neither? ...................... 68
      5.4.1. Forgotten, Ignored or Neither According to the Respondents ............... 68
      5.4.2. Forgotten, Ignored or Neither According to the Researcher .................. 70
   5.5. Conclusion ............................................................................. 75

6. THE FORGOTTEN/IGNORED CONFLICT ........................................... 76
   6.1. Factors Behind the West Papua Conflict Being Forgotten/Ignored .................... 76
      6.1.1. National/Political Interest ............................................. 76
      6.1.2. Difficult Media Access .................................................. 79
      6.1.3. Lack of Credibility ....................................................... 80
      6.1.4. Historical Context ......................................................... 81
      6.1.5. The Independence Movement .......................................... 82
      6.1.6. Miscellaneous Factors ................................................... 82
   6.2. Correlation with Hawkins theory on Stealth conflicts ................................... 83
      6.2.1. National/Political Interest ............................................. 83
      6.2.2. Geographic Proximity and Access .................................... 87
      6.2.3. Ability to Identify ....................................................... 89
      6.2.4. Ability to Sympathize .................................................... 90
      6.2.5. Simplicity ................................................................. 92
      6.2.6. Sensationalism ............................................................ 93
      6.2.7. Additional factors ....................................................... 94
   6.3. Combining and comparing factors .................................................................. 97

7. DISCUSSION ............................................................................. 99

8. CONCLUSION ........................................................................ 101
   8.1. Further Research .................................................................. 101

BIBLIOGRAPHY ....................................................................... 104

ANNEX .............................................................................. 117
West Papua and the paradox of plenty: a case study of one of the world's least known conflicts

Sili, Jennie

https://doi.org/20.500.11825/216

Downloaded from Open Knowledge Repository, Global Campus’ institutional repository