

EUROPEAN MASTER'S DEGREE IN HUMAN RIGHTS AND DEMOCRATISATION

Key challenges and undermining factors of the EU's promotion of democracy and human rights in Central Asia.

Sarah Derdelinckx

Academic Year 2011-2012
Supervisor: Univ. Prof. Mag. Dr. Wolfgang Benedek
University of Graz, Austria

Abstract

In this work the following research question will be addressed: What are the undermining factors, both internally (within the EU) and locally (within the Central Asian region) of effective promotion of democracy and human rights in Central Asia by the EU? Moreover what has to be done in order to be more successful in this process of democracy and human rights building in the region? First a theoretical framework on human rights and democracy socialization and promotion is presented. After analysis both domestic factors at Central Asian level and obstacles at EU level are identified as hindering effective implementation of the EU's human rights and democracy promotion in the region. The Central Asian countries have particular characteristics which should be taken into account by the promoter. Secondly the EU has great instruments available for human rights and democracy promotion, however serious problems exist regarding effective implementation in Central Asia. This is mostly related to energy and security interest which triumph human rights and democracy in practice in the EU's policy towards Central Asia. I argue for a paradigm change towards reconciling interest and normative goals of the EU in Central Asia. Lastly concrete recommendations for improvement are presented.

Table of Content

Acknowledgments	i
List of abbreviations	ii
List of maps, tables and figures	iii
1. Introduction	1
2. Theoretical considerations on the promotion and socialization of international norms	5
2.1. Introduction	5
2.2. Strategic calculation	7
2.3. Normative suasion	8
2.4. Risse and Sikkink's model	9
2.4.1. General model.....	9
2.4.2. Operationalisation of the model	11
2.5. Conclusion.....	15
3. Domestic obstacles to successful norm socialization for human rights and democracy in Central Asia	18
3.1. Introduction	18
3.2. Authoritarianism and neo-patrimonialism.....	19
3.3. Material vulnerability	23
3.4. Stability.....	26
3.5. Civil society.....	29
3.6. Ideational vulnerability.....	31
3.7. Conclusions	31
4. The Central Asian Strategy.....	34
4.1. Cooperation between EU and Central Asia.....	34
4.2. The Strategy's instruments	35
4.3. Areas of priority	37
5. How the EU promotes democracy and human rights in Central Asia.....	41
5.1. Introduction	41
5.2. EU's instruments for promoting human rights and democracy.....	42
5.2.1. Human rights mainstreaming and coherence in EU's external action.....	43
5.2.2. Human rights clauses and conditionality.....	44
5.2.3. Human rights and trade.....	44
5.2.4. Human rights dialogues	45

5.2.5. Declarations, demarches, common positions and joint actions	46
5.2.6. European Commission's assistance	46
5.3. Implementation in Central Asia.....	48
5.3.1. Human rights mainstreaming and coherence in EU's external action.....	48
5.3.2. Human rights clauses and conditionality.....	50
5.3.3. Human rights and trade.....	54
5.3.4. Human rights dialogues	55
5.3.5. Declarations, demarches, common positions and joint actions.....	57
5.3.6. European Commission's assistance	59
5.3.7. Conclusion	63
5.4. Underlying obstacles for effective implementation.....	65
6. Recommendations regarding EU instruments for human rights and democracy promotion in Central Asia	71
6.1. Human rights mainstreaming and coherence in EU external action	71
6.2. Human rights clauses and conditionality.....	74
6.3. Human rights and trade.....	76
6.4. Human rights dialogues	77
6.5. Declarations, demarches, common positions and joint actions.....	79
6.6. European Commission's assistance.....	79
7. Conclusion	85
Bibliography	I